I hereby allow WALL to use my work for promotional purposes:    Yes    No

I, the undersigned, certify that I am a current student at Saddleback College and that my WALL submission is my own work which has not been previously published. I also understand that my work will not be returned for revisions; it will be subject to surface editing by the staff. By completing this form, I agree to all terms, to have my work published in WALL, and that the Liberal Arts Division has my permission to use the published submission as they see fit (including use of an illustration to accompany the work). No papers will be returned. Art may be returned through special arrangements. I understand that Saddleback College, the Liberal Arts Division, and WALL Literary Journal are not responsible for lost, stolen, or damaged artwork.

Join the Staff of WALL Literary Journal and get published!

Register for ENGLISH 160: Literary Magazine

Join our team as we put together WALL Literary Journal. Students assume positions of leadership while learning the fundamentals of publishing. Staff members are responsible for publicity; reviewing and selecting student submissions; layout and design; proofing; and copy editing. Also, students on staff have the opportunity to have one of their own pieces published in the magazine. We seek students of English, creative writing, art, photography, graphic design, and journalism, but the class is open to all students and no experience is necessary. For further details about the class, please contact Professor Gina Shaffer by phone at (949) 582-4544 or via email at gshaffer@saddleback.edu. You may also check for information on the WALL website at www.wallliteraryjournal.org.
